CHASING HAS OVERTAKEN BATTING FIRST AS THE WINNING STRATEGY

Win rate for the team batting first, by season

TAKEAWAY

Batting first was once dominant. Over 18 seasons that edge has eroded — recent seasons sit below the 50% line, meaning chasing sides now win more often than not.

TOSS ADVANTAGE VARIES SHARPLY BY VENUE

Share of matches where the toss winner also won the match (min. 15 matches played)

AS TEAMS SHIFTED TOWARD FIELDING FIRST, FIRST-INNINGS SCORES CLIMBED

Two related trends across 18 seasons, shown side by side

CHOSE TO FIELD FIRST (%)

AVG FIRST-INNINGS SCORE

POWERPLAY SCORING IS ONLY SLIGHTLY HIGHER FOR EVENTUAL WINNERS

Average powerplay runs (overs 1-6), by match outcome

TAKEAWAY — the gap here is narrow: early powerplay runs alone are a weak standalone predictor of victory in this dataset; other phases of the innings matter too.

AUCTION PRICE IS A WEAK PREDICTOR OF RUNS SCORED

Highest auction price vs. total career runs, by player (sampled for readability)

THE STRIKE-RATE GAP BETWEEN CAPPED AND UNCAPPED PLAYERS HAS NARROWED

Average strike rate by season (min. 30 balls faced)

SOME VENUES CONSISTENTLY PRODUCE HIGHER-SCORING MATCHES, DAY OR NIGHT

Avg combined match total by venue and day/night status (top 10 venues by matches played)

KNOCKOUT MATCHES SKEW TOWARD TIGHTER, WICKET-BASED FINISHES

Match outcome share by tournament stage

SOME TEAMS' WINS LEAN FAR MORE ON WINNING THE TOSS

Share of a team's wins in which it also won the toss

TOP WICKET-TAKERS' EFFECTIVENESS VARIES SHARPLY BY OPPOSITION

Wickets taken vs. each opposition team — top 8 bowlers × top 8 opponents

KEY TAKEAWAYS

STRATEGY HAS SHIFTED

Chasing is now the statistically stronger approach — batting-first win rates have trended below 50% in recent seasons.

TOSS MATTERS, UNEVENLY

Its influence on outcomes depends heavily on venue and team; some teams' wins are far more toss-dependent than others.

PRICE ≠ PERFORMANCE

Auction valuation is a weak signal for on-field output — high spend doesn't reliably predict high returns.

THE TALENT GAP IS CLOSING

Uncapped players have narrowed the strike-rate gap with capped internationals across the dataset's history.
